REPORT OF THE GRAND JURY

[illegible] Detective O'Malley Conspired to Defeat Justice. He With Five Others are Indicted. The Lynchers [illegible]

NEW ORLEANS, La. May 5.—The long-delayed report of the grand jury in the interesting affair of the parish prison on March [illegible] was presented late this evening to Judge [illegible]. It justifies the citizens and presents [illegible] indictments. The following are the important points embodied in the report:

GRAND JURY ROOM, May 5, 1891. [illegible] Robert H. Marr, Judge of the Criminal District Court of the Parish of New Orleans, Section A

AN ATROCIOUS CRIME.

When this grand jury entered upon its term of service, there was pending in section A of this tribunal the trial of nine men indicted for participation in the assassination of the late Superintendent of Police, Hennessy, on the night of October 15, 1890. The enormity of the crime, executed at the midnight hour, created unusual interest throughout the whole country, while in our own city, vitally concerned in the administration of justice as deeply affecting her political and material welfare, the mind of the populace had crystallized in the concrete form of expression that [illegible] should be rendered through the recognized channels of criminal jurisprudence, the perpetrators whoever they were, should be tried by an impartial jury of American citizens and meet with a righteous conviction. One fact stood out in awful prominence above and beyond dispute or question by any man—the fact that a crime [illegible] had already been committed [illegible] by the five terrible death-dealing [illegible], the numerous slugs and bullets [illegible] in the fences and houses at [the] scene, besides the missiles that struck [illegible] the solitary man who would never [have] been marked as the victim had he not [held] the responsible position of chief of [police] of the law.

[illegible] attention [should] be drawn to the trial during the many [days] of its progress in the selection of the [jury], the evidence of witnesses, the arguments of the counsels, the charge of the [court] and finally concentrated on the twelve [men] who by virtue of their solemn oath sat [in] judgment on their fellow-men. The [verdict] is now of official record, bearing date March 13, 1891.

A STARTLING VERDICT.

[It] cannot be mistaken in the assertion [that] the verdict was startling, amazing, a [great] disappointment, shocking to public [opinion], provoking the repeated accusation [that] some of the jury had been unfaithful to [their] high office. We feel that we do not exceed the limits of our body as the grand inquisitors to refer to the strong presentation [of] the case as made by the state through [illegible], complete, convincing, in direct testimony and the material [circ]umstances. It appeared more than sufficient to convince the most unwilling listener [of] its truth and convey the full measure of [proof] to those who were in doubt. As [the] trial neared its completion it was not [difficult] for an observer to fail to read the [argu]ments made on every side touching the [conduct] of some members of the jury when [cases] should be submitted. Charges and [specu]lations abounded, coupled with the [well] known connection of certain parties of [unenviable] notoriety, shown by their [illegible] that the most [illegible] and [illegible] influences known to the practice of [crimi]nal law, were being exercised in behalf [of t]he defense.

DILIGENT INQUIRY.

[These] conclusions have led us to investigate the subject embracing all its conditions. [Our] inquiry has been conducted with the utmost diligence, devoid of fear or partiality, [with] the single purpose of fastening the guilt [upon] the proper persons and presenting [them] under indictment of this tribunal. [Eac]h one of the twelve jurors of the trial was [sum]moned, and asked to make a statement. [Non]e objected, but all rather welcomed the [opp]ortunity. It was a notable feature of [their] sworn statement that they primarily [soug]ht to justify their verdict by attacking [the] line of evidence presented by the state [and] attaching much weight to arguments of [coun]sel for the defense. It was freely [admi]tted by the jurors that their remarks had [been] made in the jury room as early as the [first] day, when the testimony was offered [and] repeated a number of times [after]wards "that the state was making a poor case" and this was [repea]tedly repeated at the close of the state's [ca]se. One quoted at least was reported [as] rising from the accusation of one juror [to] another with the expression "You talk [as if] you were fixed before you came here." [We] formed no conception of the tension [to wh]ich the public mind was strung though [impr]essed with deep interest, as shown each [day] by the crowds of people in the court.

It was clearly indicated that the [neces]sity for secrecy was urged, as the several jurors were selected and joined the [ranks] of their fellows. It was impressed [upon] them at various times and finally, be[fore the] verdict was rendered, brought forcibly [home] with the injunction to destroy [every ve]stige of evidence they had and leave [no] thought and act behind.

AN INATTENTIVE JURY.

[Under] the urgency of this was most cunningly [devi]sed to conceal the peculiar events [that] transpired in the jury room. Careful [illegible] with special reference to the [illegible] of the jury as the witnesses submitted their evidence as conduct [illegible] and fraught with the [grav]est consequences when the momentous [impor]t of the issue is considered. We are [not] confident that the jury undertook to [weigh] as when it was submitted, by their [est]imate of the value of statements [made by] parties not called as witnesses, with [almost] unanimity they dwelt upon what [they] knew by reading and hearsay of certain [illegible] of the assassination prior to the [trial and] made those the basis of the powerful reason for giving the accused the [benefit] of the doubt and concluding the de[libera]tions in their favor. We must take occasion to say that it was not exceptional to obtain any evidence of undue influence from members of the [jury] for those who were uncorrupted [had] nothing to reveal while the others would [make] themselves participes criminis. [Among] the numerous statements much was [said of] having a direct communication [with] and supported by the great volume of [illegible] during the course of the [trial]. It is clearly brought out by the ev[idence] of jurors, that as affecting three [of the] accused, Polizzi, Scaffedo and Monasterio, the jury engaged in the deliberation in [illegible] for five hours, attended [with] intense excitement and on repeated ballots, the jury stood six guilty, six not guilty. [This] is a clearly defined condemnation of the [acti]ons of the jury as to the accused. It [impres]ses us deeply, as it must every one to [whom] the fact is conveyed, and forces the [concl]usion that the evidence was sufficient to [induce] the six jurors who stood resolute and [deter]mined for a verdict of guilty, making it [almost] impossible to reach any other conclusion than a mistrial. [illegible] we so [illegible] named above, were probably the ve[illegible] actors [illegible] by the leaders of the conspiracy to execute a villainous part in which they had neither personal motive nor interest.

CONSPIRATORS.

Following this investigation it was quickly learned from various sources that talesmen had been approached. Every clue offered was taken up. As a rule the talesmen who had been previously marked out were seen when alone or invited away to some secluded and unsuspected place under well designed pretexts, guarding the real meaning of the talks, but quickly leading up to the great trial. Of favorite expression was that "big money might be made by going on the jury and doing right." There is no possible doubt that such attempts were most [illegible] various parties in the service of the defense entertained by some of the talesmen and scornfully rejected by others. These are facts given on the evidence of [illegible] who quickly discerning the true meaning of the men who addressed them indignantly repelled any attempt to control their line of conduct by these emissaries.

SILENT FROM FEAR.

Another class of the talesmen took special care to deny any knowledge of the vile work or showed remarkable deficiency of memory as to what they had told their friends causing us to conclude that they were silent from fear, or had been seen and cautioned about incriminating any one till their tongues were silenced as with the hands of death.

The necessity was imperative for complete lists of the talesmen, but such lists were not easily obtainable as in other trials. The grand jury knows that the list of 500 talesmen in the Hennessy case was in the office of O'Malley & Adams at 11 o'clock Sunday morning February 22, 1891, though the trial judge issued special orders Saturday evening that the list was not to be made public or given to counsel of either side until Monday morning. It is not shown by whose hands the list was secured, but enough is known to confirm the fact, secret and powerful influence of the so-called private detective agency and Counsel Adams to handle the machinery of the court. O'Malley was put in possession of the lists almost immediately after the names were drawn and before they reached the district attorney's office in due course. Influential friends alone could accomplish these ends but it was secured in the person of one of the commissioners lately removed. It is further shown that in the office of this detective agency is kept a book of names and addresses of jurymen. Out of 300 names drawn for the February panel, thirty-two were on the list in O'Malley & Adams' office and later as the talesmen were drawn, many more names appeared that were on that private list. At times special lists were brought to the jury commissioners, which one of them stated had been prepared elsewhere and being looked over by the others went into the jury wheel. Truly the business of the enterprising detective agency was facilitated when thirty-two names of their selection could be drawn on a panel of 300 jurors from a wheel containing 1000 names.

CRIMINAL ACTIONS.

In searching for the true causes of the criminal action connected with the empanelling of the jury in the Hennessy case the sworn statement of Thomas Collins is found of great value. Collins secured employment in O'Malley & Adams' office, and was commissioned a special officer by the mayor and paid by the city for his services. This report unfolds the whole story of the iniquitous workings of the arch conspirator and his lieutenants, revealing the boundless power [illegible] to overcome and delay the majesty of the law in criminal and civil proceedings, through the operations of an unscrupulous private detective agency. In [its attempts] to influence the talesmen, which were [par]tially successful, whispered words conveyed the insinuation or directly offered the money influence. This reference will serve to show the barriers this inquest has encountered in securing evidence, but sufficient was offered by voluntary and reliable witnesses to justify the indictment of six men as follows: Thomas M. McCrystal and John Cooney with D. C. O'Malley, & [illegible] attempting to bribe a talesman and [illegible] Glendi, Charles Granger and Ferdinand Armant for attempt by each to bribe three different talesmen. These parties are clearly shown to have been intimate with O'Malley, often at his office informed of all his doings, and were active workers in the jury fixing business generally. We were prompted to express ourselves in deprecation of the [condi]tion of many of our citizens to be connected with criminal prosecution by seeking relief from jury duty.

A CORRUPT DETECTIVE.

Taking into account the volume of testimony admitted by the numerous witnesses before this grand jury and considering that evidence, we are forced to the conclusion that D. C. O'Malley is chargeable with a knowledge of, and participation in most, if not all, of the unlawful acts in connection with that celebrated case. With his wide skill, acquired by years of experience, the most cunningly devised schemes were planned and executed for defeating the legitimate course of justice, the chief aim and object being to place unworthy men upon the jury in the trial of the nine accused. Without his assiduous and corrupting influence we believe that the verdict would have been radically different and as a natural sequence the tragedy of the 14th of March last, would never have occurred. In the persons of the indicted McCrystal and Cooney there were reliable and trained assistants, the former's connection with crime extending back through several years. McCrystal's voluntary statement to the grand jury partly in the shape of a confession, reveals some points of the trial, and causes us to think he would have told more but for the power and influence of O'Malley and his associates. We know they are the men who approached several talesmen as before stated the proposals being mostly refused. In one instance it is shown that O'Malley took money from his safe and gave it to Cooney, who said "McCrystal, you know that fellow better than I do, give him the [money]."

O'Malley's office was a place of rendezvous. All were deeply concerned in the appointment of a successor to the late chief and speculation abounded as to the availability of such a one for their use. It is but justice to state that the president and superintendent of the detective company, as also the general manager, who was in New York, as soon as they were informed that their men were being tampered with by O'Malley, did all and everything in their power to frustrate their plans.

O'MALLEY'S RECORD.

From the beginning of our investigation there is continuous evidence brought to our attention of the pernicious combinations of what is known as the D. C. O'Malley Detective agency. One of the ablest criminal lawyers at the bar is the attorney for the agency. We know for an absolute fact, that checks were drawn in the name of O'Malley & Adams, the interested parties being D. C. O'Malley and Lionel Adams. Such a combination between a detective and a prominent criminal lawyer is unheard of before in the civilized world and when we contemplate its possibilities for evil we stand aghast. The [illegible] of D. C. O'Malley for perjury was [illegible] upon most undoubted evidence that he came originally from Cleveland, O., about, on Jan. 00, 1878, he was convicted of petty larceny and committed to the work house of the city of Cleveland where he served a term, expiring June 19, 1878. Later he was committed to the parish prison for attempting to levy blackmail upon one George W. Rendolph. In the proceedings of this case it is shown that O'Malley had been arrested nine times for preventing [illegible] from appearing and testifying, carrying concealed weapons, etc. When Lionel H. Adams was district attorney it is a significant fact that the indictments [against] O'Malley for [illegible] with all[illegible] were not brought to trial but were nolle prossed by the district attorney.

A BAND OF PERJURERS.

The instances which were unearthed to get at the workings of this agency through City Detective Collins abundantly proved from many sources conclusive as that it had at its command a band of perjurers, blackmailers, suborners and jury tamperers and that it has [illegible] been an instrument of [illegible] this community. The evidence shows beyond question that O'Malley went at [illegible] street [illegible] Saturday March 14 [illegible] with a party [illegible] with [illegible] to [illegible] the party was sent back to [illegible] whence after which O'Malley [illegible] a few minutes [illegible] was running up Carondelet street [illegible] the corner of St. Charles and Washington avenue. O'Malley was [illegible] walking rapidly up St. Charles avenue. Were it possible for any [illegible] entertain the [illegible] and sympathy or even cheer [illegible] of fellowship, existing between these two [illegible] must be dispelled by the above recital. [illegible] the [illegible] and effort for [illegible] which O'Malley realized the danger expressed in the [illegible] of popular indignation.

THE MAFIA SOCIETY.

The range of our research has developed the existence of the secret organization styled Mafia. The evidence comes from several sources fully competent in themselves to attest its truth, which fact is supported by the long record of blood-curdling crimes, it being almost impossible to discover the perpetrators or secure witnesses.

The officers of the Mafia and many of its members are now known. Among them are men born in this city of Italian origin using their power for the basest purposes, be it said, to their eternal disgrace. The larger number of the society is composed of Italians and Sicilians who left their native land in most instances under assumed names to avoid conviction and punishment for crimes there committed and others were escaped convicts and bandits outlawed in their own land seeking the city of New Orleans for the congregrate companionship of their own class. The men know the swift retribution of the law in Italy. For hundreds have been shot down at sight by the military in the mountains of Sicily without second thought. We doubt not the Italian government would rather be rid of them than to be charged with their custody and punishment. [illegible] is there regarded as the embodiment of wisdom of all [illegible] of society. By the punishment of transgressors its just execution expresses the will of the people in condemnation of crime, but where this principle is condemned by the practice of assassination or revenge or spite and concealment under the most binding oaths renders powerless the efforts of the law to reach the chief actors and secure witnesses, it becomes the duty of the people in the exercise of their sovereign rights to move their decree of condemnation.

That verdict has been rendered—the power of the Mafia is broken—it must be destroyed as an element of danger, a creation of leprous growth in this community.

THE JURY WAS BRIBED.

We are so deeply impressed with the facts of the case as partially summarized in the foregoing [illegible] upon us that [illegible] of the jurors empanelled to try the accused on the charge of assassination of the chief of police, were subject to a money-influence to control their decision. Further than this we may say it appears certain that at least three, if not more, of that jury, were soundly and unlawfully controlled. Some of the jurors themselves have testified in most emphatic terms that if it had not been for the persistent and well-directed efforts of three of the jury men most conspicuous from the time that the body was empanelled that the verdict would have been materially different from that rendered.

We have engaged ourselves most assiduously with the examination of a large number of witnesses who [illegible] were present at the meeting on Canal street in the vicinity of the parish prison, as well as several hundred of our fellow citizens taken from every rank and class of society. It is shown in the evidence that the gathering on Saturday morning, March 14, embraced several thousand of the first, best and even the most law abiding citizens of this city, assembled as is the right of American citizens, to discuss in public meeting questions of grave import. We find a general sentiment among the witnesses and also in our intercourse with the people that the verdict as rendered by the jury was contrary to law, the evidence, and secured mainly through the designing and unscrupulous agents employed for the special purpose of defeating the ends of justice. At that meeting the determination was shown that the people could not submit to the surrender of their rights into the hands of midnight assassins and their powerful allies. The assassination of the late chief of police shows the culmination of a conspiracy. His death was deemed necessary to prevent the exposure and punishment of criminals whose guilt was being fast established by his diligent pursuit.

THE LAW WAS POWERLESS.

The condition of affairs in this community as to a certain class of violators of the law had [illegible] reached such a stage that the law itself was well nigh powerless to deal with them. So far reaching was their power and influence in the trial of criminal cases, that good citizens were profoundly depressed by the repeated and signal failure of justice. The arts of the perjurer and briber seemed to dominate in the courts, paralyzing and rendering powerless the ends of justice. Certainly this was a desperate situation.

The public meeting above referred to was general and spontaneous in its character, truly indicating an uprising of the masses. We doubt if any power at the command of the officers would have been sufficient to overcome its intentions.

DEFICIENT IMMIGRATION LAWS.

The immigration laws of the nation are sadly deficient and not strictly enforced. Evidence is before us from official sources that in all eleven persons were killed in the attack on the parish prison. In the careful examination as to citizenship of these men, we find that eight of them were beyond question American citizens, and another had "declared his intention in this court," which act carries with it the renunciation of allegiance to his native country. It is a noteworthy fact in connection with the uprising that no injury whatever was done to either person or property beyond this one act, which seemed to be the object of the [illegible] at parish prison.

We have referred to the large number of citizens participating in this demonstration estimated by judges at from [illegible] to 8000. We regard it as a spontaneous uprising of the people. The magnitude of this affair makes it a difficult task to fix the guilt upon any number of the participants. In fact the act seemed to involve the entire people of the parish and the city of New Orleans, so profuse is their sympathy and extended their connection with the affair. In view of these considerations, the thorough examination of the subject has failed to disclose the necessary facts to justify this grand jury in presenting indictments.

THE CHILIAN WAR.

Its Head Centre is Located in New York

SUPPLIES SENT FOR BOTH SIDES

Two New York Firms Lend Fuel for the Flames. The Hope of Valuable Concessions Their Inducement. [illegible] shipments of munitions

NEW YORK, May 5.—Judging from [illegible] the past twenty [illegible] and from rumors [illegible] the actual seat of the Chilian war is located in this city.

It is reported that two prominent [illegible] which have both [illegible] in Chili are furnishing arms [illegible] and [illegible] to the two factions [illegible] the government of Balmaceda's forces and the revolutionists. The houses mentioned are opposed to each other commercially and each is losing [illegible] to have the faction that it supports win. News was received by one of the firms yesterday from its agents in Buenos Ayres that its competitor had sent a lot of rifles and ammunition to aid Balmaceda's forces. The agent stated that the firm had shipped 300 cases of rifles and 750 pounds of ammunition by the mail ships Vigilance and Advance. These articles were transferred to another steamer and taken to Montevideo.

In Montevideo the Chilian man of war Almirante Lynch and Almirante Condell were met and the rifles and ammunition and the small arms put on board of them. The two war vessels then sailed for Valparaiso and delivered the arms to Balmaceda's forces. One of the above firms left New York just before the munitions of war were shipped and went directly to Buenos Ayres and from there to Montevideo in order to be present at the transfer of the goods of war ships. All this it is claimed was done with the full knowledge and aid of the Chilian minister at Washington. It is said that this individual is in constant telegraphic communication with the head of Balmaceda's house as the firm aiding him may be called.

Commercial house No. [illegible]—or the revolutionists backer has been charged by Balmaceda's friends with aiding the insurgents by sending arms and cartridges down there. The [illegible] for which [illegible] is said the [illegible] struggling are valuable concessions which have been promised them by their respective parties in the event of victory. One of the New York houses interested and backing the revolutionists is said to practically control and own one of the South American republics. The other house has large Brazilian interests. It was said to-day by many merchants that the war in Chili was kept going by the efforts of the houses in New York. It is an entirely new feature in the Chilian situation and may result in serious complications.

Regarding the charge made in the papers to-day that the transport "Italia" now at San Diego, Cal., receiving arms for the revolutionists was their vessel, Messrs. Grace & Co., say that it is not true. Wm. R. Grace said that they were agents for the South American Steamship company who owned the Italia, but she was seized by the insurgents. Since her seizure Mr. Grace said that his company had not had any control of the vessel.

When asked if his company had been sending munitions of war to the said revolutionists, he said it was not so and refused to talk further on the subject. There have been several reports of both the [illegible] forces in Chili here in New York for the past ten days. It is presumed they are purchasing arms for shipment.

The President in Oregon.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 5.—President Harrison and party arrived here this afternoon. It was raining but that did not dampen the ardor of the thousands of people who had gathered to greet him. The president was met at East Portland by Major Dekum and the G. A. R. and a troop of the Fourth cavalry and was escorted by them to the city. All along the line of march the streets were fairly packed with people, who cheered the president lustily. At the custom house block a reviewing stand had been erected. Standing on this platform the president reviewed the different organizations and afterwards retired to the hotel Portland.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 5.—The programme of the return trip of the president, so far as decided is as follows:

After stopping at Tacoma and Seattle he will go to Salt Lake City, stopping one day at Boise City, Idaho, then to Leadville, Colorado Springs, Denver, Lincoln, Neb., Omaha, Hannibal, Mo., Springfield, Ills., Decatur, Indianapolis, Columbus and Pittsburg.

Mrs. Barnaby's Will.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 5.—The last will of Mrs. Josephine A. Barnaby was offered for probate to-day. It is dated January 8, 1891, and witnessed by Florence W. Worrell and David F. Rose. Several minor bequests of real estate to relatives and friends is made, after which the provisions of the will are as follows: Ten thousand dollars to John Poet Reynolds, cousin of the testator; $10,000 to Mr. and Mrs. Bennett of Blue Mountain, N. Y.; $1000 each to Anne Earle, Mrs. Samuel Arnold, Theresa Cole and Mrs. Carrigan, $3000 to her grand daughter, Florence Conrad; $7000 to her grand son, J. B. Conrad; $10,000 in trust to Edward L. Worrell of Chester, Pa., then to be paid to such persons as said Worrell may appoint; $5000 to her daughter, Mrs. Manuel Conrad, $5000 to her daughter, Maud Barnaby; $2,000 to T. Thatcher Graves, M. D. After providing for memorial windows in Grace Protestant Episcopal church of Providence, the tomb stones for her father and mother, the residue of the estate is bequeathed to Grace church. Dr. Graves is named as sole executor.

It is impossible as yet to say whether this will is to be contested.

The Barnaby Poisoning.

DENVER, May 5.—Mystery still shrouds the Barnaby murder. The shadow of vague suspicion which has rested until now upon Dr. Graves, of Providence, has come at last to rest upon Mrs. Worrell, of Chester, Pa., and her son E. S. Worrell, [illegible].

Attention was first directed towards the conduct of the Worrell's through the strange utterances of District Attorney Stevens in regard to the case, and after it became known that Mrs. Worrell was a beneficiary in the will of Mrs. Barnaby. Mr. Stevens says the manner in which the case was conducted by the Worrells is very strange. He was sent east to have Mr. Worrell and his mother return to attend the grand jury investigation.

"I do not mean to make any charges against anyone," he said, "but when the Worrells return we shall see what they say."

The grand jury commenced investigation of the matter to-day.

The Coke Strikers.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., May 5.—The contest between the striking cokers and operators seems to be growing fiercer every day. Yesterday the Frick company added over 400 men to their list of Italians and Hungarians brought here to break the strike. To-day the situation was received and the labor leaders claim that they are shipping them back in about as great numbers as the coke companies brought them. Since Saturday they found 180 willing to leave the region. Saturday 30 left Lippencott and yesterday 75 left Whitney. Twenty of the cars [illegible] Central left this morning on the first train. They were followed on the [illegible] train by twenty-five more from [illegible] No. 3.

Thirty of the fifty [illegible] went to [illegible] graphed [illegible] and now [illegible] company [illegible] Barker left [illegible]

BASE BALL.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., May 5.—The base ball season of 1891 was [illegible] opened here to-day. Denver and the [home team] were escorted to the [grounds] by a procession headed by the K. P. band and made up of various civic organizations, mayor and city council and a long train of citizens in carriages. At the grounds Mayor [illegible] gave an opening address and when he tossed the sphere to Umpire Fusle there were fully 4700 people present. The game opened with heavy slugging by the home team, five runs being knocked out in first inning. Denver never saw first base till the sixth and did not cross the plate until the eighth, when a couple of bad errors gave them a tally. In the ninth Denver scored again on Hart's balk. Score:

Sioux City	0	0	4	1	0	0	0	1—

AT MILWAUKEE [LINCOLN]

MILWAUKEE, May 5.—The Milwaukees opened the [season] [illegible] celebrated the season by suffering an inglorious defeat at the hands of the Lincoln team. The home men had the game well in hand up to the fourth inning when the visitors jumped on to Davies, hitting him hard and the fielders behind him made disastrous errors at the same time. Attendance was kept down to 1100 by cold weather. Score:

Ingalls Denies.

CINCINNATI, May 5.—Ex-Senator John J. Ingalls, passing through Cincinnati last night saw in the afternoon papers a dispatch from New York, giving a special to the Herald from Kansas City in which Mr. Ingalls was represented as flatly refusing to give his views to a reporter and characterizing all such efforts as the work of penny-a-liners. To-day the Times-Star received a note from Mr. Ingalls enclosing the dispatch and saying:

"The enclosed interview is a fabrication. I saw no reporter at Kansas City, and have neither obtained nor uttered such sentiments at any time as are imputed to me. May I beg that you will have this contradiction telegraphed to the Press association from which it emanated. Yours, JOHN J. INGALLS."

A Side Line Victory.

ASPEN, Colo., May 5.—When the news was received in Aspen to-day that Judge Hallett had denied the application of the J. C. Johnson mine owners to enjoin the Della S. owners from extracting ores from the Della S. great excitement followed. Sunnyside mountain roared with profuse explosions of powder and several loads of beer were tapped for the use of all comers in celebrating the event of the side line victory.

Denver Savings Bank.

DENVER, May 5.—Frank S. Woodbury and Roger W. Woodbury to-day filed with Secretary of State Eaton articles of incorporation of the Rocky Mountain Dime and Dollar Savings bank. The capital stock is $50,000 with privilege of being increased at any time to $500,000. The board of directors is as follows: Frank S. Woodbury, Roger W. Woodbury, K. G. Cooper, Sam I. Rose, Robt. W. Russia Has Something to Say.

MOSCOW, May 5.—The Gazette is indignant at the English and American [illegible] ignoring Russia's connection with the Behring Sea matters, and declares that any agreement made without Russia's consent will be worthless. The Gazette proposes that America and Russia settle the question without reference to England.

Denver and Rio Grande Earnings.

DENVER, May 5.—The earnings of the Denver and Rio Grande railroad for April were $802,700, against $761,046 two years ago, being an increase of $41,654 or 5.7 per cent. The earnings for the present year to date are $7,355,475, against $6,843,[illegible] last year. Gain over last year $5[illegible],491, or 7.58 per cent, over two years ago $1,011,212, or 15.94 per cent.

An Italian Opinion.

ROME, May 5.—The Opinione says Mr. Blaine's telegram to Minister Porter again begs the question. The green book proved that the telegram to Baron Fava was communicated in confidence to Mr. Blaine and President Harrison. It is regretable that a minister of a great power should persist in quibbling while the principle at issue is unsolved.

An Offer of Mediation.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The United States government has instructed Mr. Egan our minister to Chili, to offer to mediate between the combatants in that country in the interest of peace and good order. France and Brazil, the other great republics of the world have joined in the proffer of their good offices in the interests of the perpetuity of republican principles of government.

The American minister at Lisbon announces the issue of a royal decree fixing the duty on foreign wheat at 10 reis per kilogram, about 55 cents per 112 pounds, or a fixed [illegible] 20 cents per bushel of sixty pounds and repealing all restrictions imposed on the sale of wheat in the open market by the decree of Aug. 1 [illegible].

RAGING FLAMES.

The City of Pittsburg Suffers a Very Severe Loss

CHURCH AND COLLEGE BURNED

The Flames Gain Headway Before Water is Obtained. Stores and Residences are Destroyed. Sixty Girl Students Change Rooms

PITTSBURG, May 5.—At [illegible] o'clock [illegible] [illegible] Market [illegible] Seventh street. It [illegible] is still raging [illegible] with every engine in the city at work. [illegible] Seventh street [illegible] Seventh [illegible] the Pittsburg [illegible] with Christ M. E. church corner Penn avenue and Eighth street. At this writing [illegible] threatening [illegible] the college will doubtless be destroyed.

The buildings burned are as follows: No. 17 Seventh street, occupied by the city health bureau. No. 19 [illegible] and buildings Nos. 21, 23, 25 and 27 Seventh street occupied by the Pittsburg Cell and General Storage company. Pittsburg Grocers Supply company, commission merchants. The building, a large [illegible] story brick was filled from cellar to roof with miscellaneous goods and is with contents a total loss. It was in the basement of this building that the fire was first discovered.

The fire department could not at first get a supply of water and the flames gained great headway before a drop of water could be thrown upon it. The origin of the fire is as yet unknown.

No. 29 Seventh street occupied by Bolston & Spangler, produce merchants suffered a total loss. Nos. 33 to and 37 Seventh street standing at the corner of Seventh and Penn avenue and occupied as a boarding house known as the Buchanan house is burning. The building at No. 31 Seventh street, occupied by Joseph A. Hoerler, pork packer is a total loss. No. 28 Seventh street occupied by McCullough & Smith, rags and paper, will probably be totally destroyed.

The Second Presbyterian church and a number of other buildings on the opposite side of Seventh street from the above buildings were on fire several times, but beyond a bad scorching, will not be greatly damaged. From the rear of No. 21 Seventh street, the flames communicated with the Pittsburg Female college on Eighth street. The professors and students occupying the building vacated at once, carrying with them whatever articles of [illegible] could [illegible]. A strong breeze is blowing from the northwest, carrying sparks and flakes of fire all over the lower part of the city. The tall frame spire on the top of Christ M. E. church, corner Eighth street and Penn avenue, caught fire at almost the same time [illegible] with the college. The highest ladders and strongest streams of water were brought into play, but could not reach the burning tower. Presently it fell outward on top of the avenue [illegible] southeast corner of the church wall. The burning debris also fell inside of the tower, igniting the woodwork inside of the beautiful edifice.

At 12:30 o'clock the church and college buildings seemed doomed, while the flames continued to spread to other buildings.

At 1:40 a. m. the flames are burning furiously but will probably be confined within the present area.

The sixty boarders at the college saved all their personal effects. They are now quartered at the Home hotel on Duquesne way. The main part of the college building will not be seriously damaged. The south wing just in the rear of Christ M. E. church will be a total loss, while the roof on the main building is burned away. The loss to the building will probably not exceed $30,000. The building is the property of the Pittsburg M. E. conference.

Christ M. E. church, corner Penn avenue and Eighth street is a total loss.

The total loss by the fire is estimated at over $1,000,000. No estimate of the insurance is obtainable.

Governor Boyd Ousted.

LINCOLN, Neb., May 5.—The supreme court of the state to-day rendered a decision in the Boyd-Thayer quo warranto case ousting Boyd and declaring Thayer the legal governor of Nebraska. The opinion recites the fact that Boyd was legally elected governor of the state, but is disqualified on the ground of non-citizenship. After quoting the constitution relative to aliens it proceeds to the question of the succession and disposes of the claims of Lieut. Governor Majors by stating that when the person receiving the highest number of votes for the office of governor is ineligible under the constitution to be elected the governor holds over. The duties of the chief executive office of the state devolves upon the lieutenant in certain contingencies, among which are the failure of the governor elect to qualify or the disability of the governor. It cannot be said that there [has] been a failure to qualify where non-constitutionally elected to office. The writ of ouster was served on Governor Boyd about 5 o'clock. He received it calmly and said "I am ready to turn over the office now."

His attorney, John D. Howe of Omaha, who has just arrived, requested him to wait a moment and immediately went to the supreme court room to file a motion for a stay but as the judgment had already been entered and the writ served it was too late. The opinion was signed by Chief Justice Cobb and Justice Norville, Justice Maxwell dissenting. It is stated that Mr. Boyd will carry the case to the supreme court of the United States. The decision on the whole may be said to be a surprise, the opinion being that in the event of ousting of Boyd Lieutenant Governor Majors will be named as his successor.

Socialist Incendiaries.

ROME, May 5.—Startling rumors are circulating in the city and are causing much alarm at the Vatican and in government circles. The rumor originated after a fire which yesterday evening was discovered in the barracks occupied by the Carabineria, a picked body of armed and mounted policemen or gendarmes. The flames, in spite of the Carabineria, assisted by the troops and the firemen who were summoned to the scene, soon spread to the barns or storehouses adjoining the Carabinera barracks, where the stocks of forage intended for the horses of the Carabineria were stored. The stalls were soon attacked by the flames and the terrified horses, liberated with difficulty by the stable guard rushed frantically down to the banks of the Tiber where they were afterwards recaptured.

In the meanwhile the news of the fire had spread throughout Rome and naturally had reached the Vatican. It is not exactly known in what shape the news of the fire was communicated to the Vatican authorities, but in any event was so alarmed them that the entire Swiss guard was immediately under arms and was kept under arms throughout the night. It is now currently reported that the fire which so alarmed the Vatican, was undoubtedly of an incendiary origin, and that it was the work of the Socialist element in this city, which has been bubbling up here and elsewhere before May day, on May day and since that date in various forms and under different disguises.

Weather Forecast.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Forecast till 8 p. m. Wednesday: For Colorado: Fair; [illegible] northeast winds.

M. L. DE COURSEY,

Real Estate, Investments and Loans.

FOR SALE.

1. The magnificent business property southwest corner Pike's Peak and Nevada avenues in the exact heart of the city being at the point where the original four wards come together. This property has a frontage of over 150 feet on Nevada avenue and 100 feet on Pike's Peak avenue, and has 44 feet on the [illegible]. In [illegible] of two years this corner will be as good as the corner of Pike's Peak and Tejon streets for business purposes, if not better, for it fronts on two 100 foot avenues, and being more centrally located [illegible] the situation and I will sell it for one third the price that will buy the other. Meanwhile the improvements on it pay the taxes and leave a handsome surplus.

2. The equally splendid residence property on North Tejon street, fronting 400 feet on the Rapid Transit line running from Willamette avenue to Monument street with a depth of 190 feet to a 20 feet alley in a most desirable neighborhood. One half the frontage on Tejon street and the 190 ft frontage on Willamette avenue is bordered with ten year-old maple and locust trees. I will sell this grand property if taken at once, for $35,000. Compare this with the corner one fourth the size, in Shook's Run bottom, which the school board was so glad to get for $8800, and you will see it is very cheap.

3. I have a large block of desirable property consisting of lots improved and unimproved which while a good deal of money is required to handle it, I will sell for just one half its real worth at market prices. The improvements yield a very fair return over and above the taxes and within two years the property should be sold at a profit of at least 100 per cent for anyone who will invest in it now. This is really a big thing, and I will be glad to show it to anyone who means "business." None others need apply.

4. A choice business corner on Huerfano street, 75 by 190 feet. A first class location for a warehouse, a grain and feed store, or a large blacksmithing establishment which will catch all the trade entering town from the west. Or it would be just the corner for a forwarding and commission house, a coal and lumber and wood yard, or a stone and marble yard, large enough to show and keep stock properly, and convenient for shipping via several lines of railroad. This is a great property for someone who has the means with which to buy it, and the business requiring such a location.

BIG LITTLE BARGAINS.

1. THE GREATEST BARGAIN IN THE CITY, without exception. A three room brick house on a corner lot, 50x167 feet, city water, barn, chicken house, etc., in Loomis addition ONLY $950. FIRST COME FIRST SERVED. The lot alone is worth almost the money.
2. Five lots corner Kiowa and Spruce streets, each 38 feet frontage on the rapid transit line, just four blocks from Antlers hotel. To quick buyers $400 to $[illegible] each. Great bargains.
3. Two fine lots on Washington avenue, close to town, for $1475, or $[illegible] for one lot. Terms half cash, balance two years at 8 per cent. A snap for [illegible].
4. A corner lot 50x190 feet, facing south, on Colorado avenue, in West Colorado Springs, for $800. Everybody knows this will soon be worth much more money.

PARRISH'S ADDITION.

1. A lot 50x190 feet, on Kiowa street east of Chestnut, for $750. Inferior lots in inferior locations are selling for $1000.
2. Corner 100 by 135 feet on Platte avenue, $1[illegible]00.
3. Corner 100 by 190 feet on Bijou street, $1400.
4. Corner 50 by 190 feet on Kiowa street, $850.
5. Corner 38 by 100 feet on Bijou street, $[illegible]00.
6. Corner 100 by 190 feet on Pike's Peak avenue, $1800.
7. Inside lots on Pike's Peak and Platte avenues and on Kiowa and Bijou streets, from $[illegible]00 to $1400, according to size and location.

COUNTRY ESTATES.

1. I am authorized to offer for sale, for a short time, the charming country [illegible] dence and estate, so well and favorably known as Ridge Lawn, [illegible] 150 acres of enclosed land only ten miles north [illegible] of town by a good [illegible] road. This place is subdivided into four fields, and seventy [illegible] are [in] cultivation. No irrigation is required, good crops of grain and potatoes [illegible] raised without it. The improvements consist of a [illegible] of 9 [illegible] and bath room with hot and cold water, water being furnished from hydraulic ram set in the fine springs which abound on the property [illegible] low, 20x30 barn with 5 box stalls, carriage, feed and [illegible] for ten tons of hay, meat house, dairy house, [illegible] pure ice, cut from pond covering an acre of ground [illegible] water fourteen feet deep from the springs, ever flowing and pure. [illegible] one spring 8 feet deep, of iron and sulphur water. Also a potato [illegible] 20,000 lb. [illegible] desirable place for less money than has been expended in the improvements upon it. Someone can make a fortune running it as a resort for [illegible] season. It can be kept full all the time. The owner wishes to [illegible] his profession in the city, or he would not think of selling.

2. Blair Athol! Unsurpassed for grandeur and beauty of [illegible] surroundings, remarkable freaks of nature in shape and [illegible], a second GLEN EYRIE. Anyone wishing a home surrounded by nature in its wildest, grandest, weirdest, most awe-inspiring, and at the same time its [most] lovely forms, can here find it.

A DONATION.

I will give, free of cost, to any acceptable [corpo]ration that will [illegible] thereon, sufficient ground at "Fairmount Park," two miles from this city, for the purpose of a Sanitarium, Summer Resort, Hotel, or other institution of a public character, which will attract people and public attention to the locality; provided such institutions or establishments be of [illegible] to the [illegible] by sufficient means. CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED.

[illegible]

Remember that I can help you in the [illegible] of your [illegible], and that I shall be glad to see you at any time. Respectfully,

The report that the centre of the Chilian war is in New York may explain the origin of many of the Denver News dispatches.

There will be a meeting of all the committees appointed to arrange for the president's reception, at the Antlers annex, at 4 o'clock this afternoon. It is desirable that all arrangements should be immediately completed and it is to be hoped that every member of every committee will be present.

The annual meeting of the Humane society occurs at the Antlers at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Every member should be present and all other citizens interested in the work. The people of El Paso county know of the good work of this society in the past, but its officers must have the moral support of the whole people if they are to continue in the work successfully. This support can best be given by turning out at the meeting to approve the work done in the past and prepare for the work of the future.

A contemporary says:

Ignatius Donnelly's Baconian cipher in Shakspeare's works has been rendered tame by the tremendous discoveries of Dr. Orville W. Owen, an ingenious gentleman of Detroit, who says that he has brought to light hidden stories, not only in the dramas of Shakspeare, but also in the "Novum Organum," the "History of King Henry VIII," the "New Atlantis" and the "Valerius Terminus." According to Dr. Owen, "Lord Bacon himself, with his own hand, slew William Shakspeare," because the bard of Avon was a blackmailer, who, after securing £90,000 from [illegible], threatened to "expose to King James the real authorship of the plays." Having killed Shakespeare, the bloodthirsty Bacon cut off his head, embalmed it, and [illegible] it in a leaden box with a written parchment and buried it at a [illegible]. Dr. Owen has discovered in the cipher minute directions for the recovery of this box and is going to England to get it. This is all very surprising, but it would excite more interest did it [illegible] some slight grain of reason. Probably the next great discovery will be that Bacon not only wrote Shakespeare's plays and killed Shakespeare, but also ate him.

It is, however, much more likely that Shakespeare ate bacon.

It is difficult to give the exact meaning of the election of school trustee last Monday as there were so many different [illegible] at work. But it is perhaps a fair inference to assume that the people of this school district [illegible] the school committee to modify some of its plans for the extension of the schools. It has frequently been stated that the school board had no definite plans regarding the location of new buildings which it was unwilling to change, provided better plans were shown. During the past year the members have given a great deal of consideration to increasing the number of rooms and in this consideration have had in view the accommodations of the population and also the convenience of the schools. The decision to erect the Kiowa street school house was mainly due to the great help a school house in this place would be in grading the schools and to the fact that a ten-room building on that site could be erected for about the cost of an eight-room building on a more level site. The members of the board will probably at their meeting this afternoon decide to give up the Kiowa street building and arrange for the selling of the lot. The site of this building was not an all-important matter. On the more important things the school board, the trustee-elect and the voters of the district seem to agree. That is, that a high school building shall immediately be put up; that so much room shall be given to the high school as is necessary, and that the rest shall be given to our grade schools; and third, that the course of study in the high school is not to be lowered. The sentiment expressed at the meeting after the election was very kindly toward the school board and its plans for a high school. If we understand Mr. Humphrey correctly these are practically his views so that the board will be a unit on the most important things at the beginning of its labors. Mr. Humphrey served on the school board nine consecutive years between 1878 and 1887. During this time he held the offices of secretary or president. He gave a great deal of time to the duties of his office and, therefore, was very well posted regarding the schools. Mr. Humphrey is an honorable, public-spirited citizen and is well worthy of the place to which he is elected. We trust that the school board will have a united and prosperous year.

The school census shows some four hundred and twenty children in excess of the census of last year. This gives an idea of how much our school board is taxed to give proper accommodations. Ten new rooms at once will hardly be sufficient to accommodate the increase during the year in our school population.

The Situation in Chili.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The navy department to-day received the following report, [illegible] Valparaiso, March 31st, from Rear Admiral McCann, commanding the United [illegible] in Chilian waters:

"On the [illegible] of March the Pensacola returned to this port from Caldera. On the way [illegible] and about 100 miles north of this port the insurgent Chilian cruiser Esmeralda [illegible] Aconcagua were met standing to the northward and it was suspected [illegible] had been in pursuit of the government transport Imperial. Upon our arrival the [illegible] vessel was found in port [illegible] learned that she had been chased [illegible] by the insurgent vessels [illegible]. The two torpedo [illegible] Almirante Lynch and Almirante C[illegible] torpedo boats, only one [illegible] now in this [illegible] Pikosayo, situation at place of unknown, but supposed to be at Buenos Ayres, constituted the entire naval force at the disposition of the Chilian government. The port of Caldera is at present almost entirely deserted. There was at the time of our visit only four merchant ships in port. It was two months since an American vessel visited the place and we have practically no interests there. At the present time there are at Caldera only three Americans, including the consul, and in Copiapo only three, which includes the consul's son. No preparations have been made to defend the place in case the insurgents attack it, but on the contrary, the Sutendencia has been moved to Copiapo, about forty miles inland by rail, and every night all the rolling stock in use on the road is removed to that city. There is only a small cavalry force stationed at Caldera and they are always ready to move into the interior at a moment's notice. The railroad machine shops have been dismantled so that if the insurgents take Caldera they will find no facilities for repairing their ships. The English force on the coast includes the Warspite, Champion, Daphne, Acorn and Espiegle. From my own observation and from what I can learn of the conditions of the insurgent vessels all but one of them are in a very crippled condition and in no way fit to work around these waters during a norther. It is also, in my opinion, very doubtful if they will risk their only efficient, but unarmored vessel, under the fire of the batteries of Valparaiso at any time, but especially during the norther season.

Timber on Public Land.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Commissioner Carter, of the land office, to-day issued an important circular letter of instruction to receivers of land offices in regard to the act of March 8, 1891, relating to the cutting of timber from the public land. The sections apply only to Colorado, Montana, Idaho, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming and Nevada, the territory of Utah and the district of Alaska. The circular says:

"Settlers upon the public lands, miners, farmers and other bona fide residents who have not a sufficient supply of timber on their own claims or lands for firewood, fencing or building purposes, or for necessary use in developing the mineral and other natural resources of the lands owned or occupied by them, are permitted to procure timber from the public lands to be used for these purposes, but not for sale or disposal or use on other lands or by other persons. The law is construed not to give the right to cut timber on any appropriated or reserved public lands. The cutting or removing of timber from public lands by or for any applicant before authority has been especially granted by the secretary of the interior, will render the party so offending liable to prosecution for trespassing and subject his application to rejection.

Saw mill owners, lumber dealers, and others who in any manner cause, procure timber to be cut or removed from any public lands in violation of law or the rules and regulations, whether directly by men in their employ or indirectly through contract or by purchase, are equally guilty of trespass with the individuals who actually cut or remove such timber, and are liable to criminal prosecution. The procurer or manufacturer of timber so cut, as well as the purchaser of such timber or its products, is also liable in civil suit for the value thereof."

Mexican Lead Ore.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Secretary Foster has instructed the United States district attorney for the Western district of Texas to appeal in the circuit court of Texas from the decision of the board of general appraisers at New York, admitting Mexican lead ore into this country at the rate of 1½ cents per pound for the lead contained in the ore, when the same is mixed with ore containing silver, etc.

The effect of the decision of the board of general appraisers is to admit this mixed ore at the rate of $6 per ton, when, if duty were assessed on both the lead and other minerals in the ores, with which it is purposely mixed in Mexico, the duty would be $30 per ton.

English News.

LONDON, May 5. A parliamentary committee by a majority of two has adopted Mr. Morley's report on London companies, declaring that their title in Ireland is merely that of trustees, and rejecting ministerial reports in favor of ownership.

The influenza epidemic is unabated in Sheffield, and it has now attacked Nottingham and Carnarvon. Numerous deaths are reported. The government whip, Sidney Herbert, is prostrated with the malady.

Gloves and Veils.

Will gloves go back to the Renaissance for styles, as the cloak has done? You know they wore these gloves all covered with embroideries and precious stones; the cuff, widening as it reached the arm, was an incrustation of gold and silver and precious settings. It was a heavy gauntlet, not a glove. It is not likely that these will take, as we say in fashion parlance. Women will have the good taste to cling to the plain kid glove, which shows the perfect shape of the hand. The buttoned glove is now in as much favor as the musquetaire. It is owing to the very long sleeves worn with every gown, except with full dress.

The tan colors are worn less and the light shades more. Did you not often wonder where the kid skins come from to make all the kid gloves in the world? When I see the mountains of gloves sold at the Louvre and the Bon Marche in the bargain season, I wonder if there isn't a way of manufacturing skins, or if there are not kids which, like sheep who are sheared every year, can be skinned and have a skin grow on again for next year's flaying.

Veils are no longer worn down to the tip of the nose, but all over the face. The kinds of tulles and nets sold for veiling are innumerable. The beauty spot veiling is the most becoming; not the spots, but the netting itself. Everybody wears it here. Then there is fancy netting, studded with steel, gold and silver beading and espangles. Some of them are as thick as the old fashioned Chantilly veil which our grandmothers wore. French women have never taken kindly to the white veil. They are one of the indications by which we single out a foreign woman. Nor do they incase the front hair with an illusion to keep it down or to keep the ringlets from uncurling. That, I think, is an American fashion.—Paris Cor. Brooklyn Eagle.

Columbia College Certificates for Women.

Under the direction of the school of arts of Columbia college examinations will be held at Barnard college from June 1 to 6. These examinations will bear the same relation to Columbia and Barnard colleges which the Harvard university examinations for women bear to Harvard college and the "Harvard annex." They will be identical with the examinations for admission to the freshmen classes of Columbia and Barnard colleges, and will be held at the same time and place and on the same terms of notification.

The certificates granted will be of two kinds. To a candidate who passes satisfactory examinations in at least three subjects a certificate will be given, signed by the dean of the school of arts. To a candidate who passes satisfactorily the whole examination a certificate will be given, signed by the president of Columbia college.

It is believed that these examinations will be of great value and assistance to the schools for girls in New York and its neighborhood, as a means of proving the thorough work done in them by both the teachers and pupils. That the faculty of Columbia college have decided to offer them has been due chiefly to the efforts and expressed wishes of the teachers in several of the larger schools for girls in New York city.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

The late Mary Cash Cheairs, of Bolivar, Tenn., predicted two years ago that she would die on her ninety-fourth birthday, and she did so. She was a remarkable woman in many ways, being able to play the harp and sing ballads almost to the day of her death, and to quote long passages from the Greek and Roman poets, with whose writings she was quite familiar.

CHRISTIANITY OF TODAY.

DR. DEEMS, OF NEW YORK, SAYS IT IS ADVANCING.

In View of the Approaching Investigation of the Teachings of Professor Briggs, of the Union Theological Seminary, This Is a Timely Interview.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, April 29.—Rev. Charles F. Deems, D. D., LL.D., pastor of the Church of the Strangers, was found in his library attached to the church edifice, deeply engaged in the various missionary projects promoted there. In speech he is famous for his readiness of wit and wealth of thought, and the following impromptu remarks in answer to the questions of the writer, the first of which was "Is Christianity advancing?" show the character of the intellectual equipment he at all times carries into Christian warfare.

He said: "The general attitude of Christianity at the present day is that of a spirit consciously superior to the body which it inhabits. I should call that body the visible church. Its spirit is wholly undaunted. It exhibits little excitement, but it has lived down everything which has appeared against it, from the Julian persecutions of the First century, and the injurious relations of the church to the state under Constantine in the Third century, to the most virulent attacks of Deism in the Tenth century. It has not the sound of the rushing wind as in its earliest Pentecost, yet it never was more certain of its final conquest of the world. It showed more push, not to say rush, when it was less certain than it is now.

"Among the factors of its progress is the knowledge of its supernatural origin and an always satisfactory review of its past growth. The dreams of the earliest disciples of the immediate coming of the Lord may not be observable now, and if they were mistakes Christianity is using them still as stepping stones to a higher development.

"Obstructive influences? There are no more obstructive influences now than there ever have been. All men deficient in propensity to faith, all men soaked in lusts and passions, all men hardened in materialism, will find it difficult to accept Christianity, and will stand in society and commerce, in scientific and political circles as obstructive to Christianity, but this has been so from the beginning, and it certainly is not more so today than it was in the first five centuries."

"What of the revelations of modern science?"

"In modern science there is nothing to create a stumbling block to true Christian faith. But the phrase 'modern science' is rather vague. So much is accepted as science without examination by so many superficial minds that it would depend very much upon the person to whom I was speaking how I answered that question. Those who desire to find objection to anything in heaven or earth or any other place there may be will require very little wit or wisdom to do so.

"In the scientific world there are many things which are mere hypotheses. These are absolutely essential to the progress of science; but a hypothesis is not a settled principle or dogma. So far as modern science is concerned, there has been no discovery, no advanced thinking which draws to itself the catholic church of science that does not equally draw to itself the catholic church of Christianity. By which, manifestly I mean that there is no principle or dogma agreed upon by men who are acknowledged in all lands to be at the head of science which gives the least trouble to those who accept the doctrines agreed upon by all sects.

"On the contrary, nothing has helped Christianity so much as the real discoveries of modern science. In archæological science discovery after discovery has been made that explains passages of Old and New Testament Scripture, each one of which was a crux to the theologians, up to the last quarter of a century. I might illustrate this at large if I were lecturing rather than giving an interview.

"Again, in physical science nothing has been discovered which at all conflicts with the accepted interpretation of the canonical Scriptures. The exhilarating thought is that the trustworthy masters of physical science are shedding a splendor of light upon some of the darkest passages in our sacred books. We are discovering that the revelations which God has made in the Bible in regard to spiritual things are in perfect accord, analogy and parallel with what God has revealed in material and physical things.

"For instance, Jesus, the founder of Christianity, insisted that there was no such thing as spontaneous regeneration, and it has been among the most painful efforts of his followers to make that idea acceptable to cultivated worldly men. Now, science comes and demonstrates to us the improbability of spontaneous generation, an improbability so very heavy that it weighs with men of science in this day as if it were an established fact. I might give many similar illustrations. Another result follows, namely, that as rapidly as we discover a thing and study our Bibles more, we find it has all been there from the beginning. The very discoveries which some churchmen thought would blow up the whole system as revealed in the Bible are now seen to be an absolute confirmation thereof. In this interview I can only make statements, and am not expected in a few minutes to hunt up proofs, but I hold myself responsible for the facts."

"Is the interpretation of the Scriptures more liberal than heretofore?"

"I should hardly use the word liberal, for it is an ambiguous word that has been so dreadfully prostituted in modern times as to be almost a synonym for licentious. The Scriptures of the Old and New Testament have received more and better study since the beginning of this century than they had probably in all the centuries that preceded. Theology is a science, just as geology is; no more, no less. Theology used to be regarded superstitiously by many, and by many was considered a synonym of religion. But now we know the difference. Theology is only one of the sciences, like astronomy or geology. Men are bringing to the study of the Bible the same careful, trained and systematic modes and habits that they apply to the study of the stars or earth. The result is that there is the old Bible and a new theology, the old earth and a new chemistry. There is not a man, probably, in the most obscure school in America who would dare to use in chemistry the same text book which Dr. John William Draper and I used in teaching our classes forty-four years ago.

"When Professor Huxley was in this country and made a [illegible] the many different interpretations of the first chapter of Genesis I offered to show three times as many changes in any department, say in astronomy, chemistry or geology, as he could show in Biblical literature in the interpretation of the Scriptures. If theology were the product of God as the Bible is it would be as changeless as the Bible. If geology were the product of God as the earth is it would be as changeless as the earth, but he who made the Bible and the earth is God, and they who make theology and geology are men!"

"But is not the first chapter of Genesis regarded as an anchor of agnostic argument?"

"I do not see how it helps agnosticism at all. I do not see how it helps any who reject faith in God. Those who think so have been following in the footsteps of Voltaire, who ridiculed the idea of there being any light before the sun was created. There is not a neophyte in science who does not know that the sun could not have been created if light did not exist. When such men as Dana, Guyot and Asa Gray interpret the first book of Genesis in accord with what they know or have studied, and then devoutly worship the Jehovah of the Old Testament and the Jesus of the New, it seems to me that such a fact as that is cold comfort for anybody who wishes to find in the first chapter of Genesis an excuse for rejecting religion."

"In your judgment, have modern inventions and explorations a bearing upon the progress of Christianity?"

"Assuredly so, for they are not only the handmaids but the daughters of Christianity. Who are the explorers now? Buddhists, pagans, agnostics—name them! Who are the inventors and discoverers? When did invention and discovery begin? Where are they carried on—in heathen or Christian lands? Under the fostering influences of those who reject or the nursings of those who accept Christianity? Printing, steam, electricity—they were made by the Christian faith and for the Christian faith and if all Christendom had been praying specifically for that which would materially carry forward Christ's kingdom, they would have prayed for precisely the things discovered in every department of applied science."

"Have you found a disposition to break away from old creeds?"

"I do not discover a general disposition to break away from old creeds so much as a disposition to break with the formulæ in which Christian creeds have been expressed. The fact is that a formulated creed is hardly needed when the Author and Finisher of our faith, as the founder of Christianity is called by the greatest intellect that ever wrote in regard to religion, taught us what to do. He did not teach that a man had to believe anything about God, about his son, about the Holy Spirit, about the future state of humanity or the individual man—not a thing. He taught that we are sinners; he taught us to believe God and to believe himself, and rested our salvation there, feeling sure that whosoever in his inmost soul absolutely and positively believed God and his son Jesus Christ would have wrought in him such a spirit as would purge his life from impurity and secure for itself a permanence of existence.

"But I have another engagement in a few minutes, and let me say finally, I have been preaching the gospel now for fifty years, and have been studying the Bible in some measure in all the lights afforded me in that time. I have not from childhood ever neglected science. Today I have more faith in God. He is to me more really a person than he ever was. I have more faith in Christ. He is more human and more divine to me than he ever was. I have more faith in the final triumph of Christianity, not churchism, not creeds, not theologies, for, ordinarily, the more church and more theology the less Christianity. I have faith that Christianity wrapped in the swaddling clothes of one generation will burst its bonds in order to bestow its benedictions upon succeeding generations and confine Christianity. I have such faith in her divine vitality as to believe that however many 'Good Fridays' she may have, the luster of her Easters will so besplendor the world with heavenly light and sweetness that mankind will forever live thereafter at high noon."

CHURCH OPENING

The Public Inspects the New Baptist Church for the First Time.

The auditorium of the First Baptist church was opened to the public for the first time last night, the occasion being a lecture by the Rev. Kerr B Tupper, pastor of the First Baptist church of Denver.

It was a brilliant gathering that assembled in the church last evening, every seat being occupied. The people began to arrive early and spent their time in carefully examining the splendid room a description of which was given in the GAZETTE yesterday morning. Many were the smiles and nods of approval. No attempt had been made at decoration excepting a few cut flowers on the pulpit and in fact decorations of any kind would lose their effect in that handsome room.

Dr Tupper and Rev Richard Montague, the pastor of the church, occupied the pulpit and the musical portion of the programme was given from the choir platform on the south. The music was unusually fine and fitting the auspicious occasion. The soloists were Mr Morrison and Mrs Betta Boyakin Watts both of Denver. Miss Richardson of Colorado Springs presided at the piano and Dr. Pennington accompanied on the violin during the lady's solos. Mrs. Watts has a wonderful soprano voice, one of the sweetest heard in this city for some time and every number on the programme was well received. The most pleasing number was Benedict's "Bird Song" and she was compelled to respond to an encore. Mr Morrison has a fine tenor voice and a pleasing manner. His numbers were well received, Malloy's "Rose Marie" receiving a deserved encore. Mr Morrison responded by singing "Absent, Yet Present." There was only one objection to the musical portion of the programme—there was not enough of it.

Rev Mr Montague expressed a few words of welcome to those present in behalf of his congregation, and simply introduced Mr Tupper. All were eagerly looking for the speaker of the evening. It was a young man of slight graceful build, dark hair and mustache, dressed in a close fitting Prince Albert coat that stepped forward to address them. The speaker began in a clear voice that reached every point of the room, and the audience soon realized that it was a master in public speaking who addressed them. Dr. Tupper is not an orator in the common sense, not the bombastic orator of the Daniel Webster school. He belongs to the common sense, business school of orators of to-day, with perfect enunciation, clear, clean cut sentences, yet graceful delivery and something besides pretty combinations of words. Dr. Tupper's subject was "Our National Heritage." He began by relating an incident in the life of Charlemagne in which he prophesied the invasion of the Norsemen. Comparing the present times with those of the past, he is led to build high hopes for the future, and our republic is our glorious national heritage. The nineteenth century of our America is essentially different from any century of any other country, and the speaker compared what we possess with what the people of other countries possess. The century presents the spectacle of [illegible],000,000 of people at peace and possessed of the largest liberty—a satisfied and powerful people. In dealing with our republic there are three aspects to be considered—the advantages of life presented, the dangers that threaten the republic and the duties of the citizen.

Geographically and for all conditions favorable to physical growth and health, the speaker explained the splendid situation of the republic. It is far away from the influences of the social life of the old world. On our patrimony the sun never sets, and a few illustrations showed the size and the wealth of the great republic. Higher and nobler still, however, are the social, political and religious advantages. According to the speaker the greatest advantages offered by this country are personal liberty and political equality and in passing he spoke feelingly of a free press and freedom of thought.

The great dangers to the republic are lawlessness, mormonism, the liquor power, illiteracy, materialism, immigration.

They are influences that will sink us if we do not fight them. The great dangers are internal, the tendency to believe that we can assimilate everything. Political optimism is the danger of the hour. Nations die from heart failure, from injury within. America must watch or her fate will be that of the nations of the past which have fallen through too much pride and luxury. The great duty of the American citizen is the duty of intelligence. They must study the history of the country from the very beginning. The speaker urged his hearers to have such respect and honor for the country as will never allow them to be disrespectful to the officers of any branch of the government. Liberty is the only road to prosperity. It must be the ballot at the right time or the bullet at the wrong time. If evils take possession it will be because of indifference to the right of franchise. We shall yet conquer through the intelligence of the people and the goodness of God. Dr. Tupper closed his admirable address with a peroration on the good men who are needed for the work.

At the conclusion of the address Mr. Montague in a few words described the church and invited all present to remain and inspect it thoroughly. Nearly every one present accepted the invitation and were hospitably entertained by the ladies of the aid society.

Water Works Committee Report.

Following is the report of the water works committee of the city council, made Monday evening. It is of interest to a large number of persons:

Your committee on water works would respectfully recommend as follows on matters referred from the council [illegible] 1890. On petition for 4 inch main on Cache la Poudre street to Yampa street, Boulder and Corona streets (40 feet) and Lon Cimarron streets 200 feet, we recommend the putting in of the same. As to the petitions for extension on Uintah and Columbia street in blocks D, E, F, C, D, E, M and N, Edwards addition, we do not think [illegible] would be warranted in doing as [illegible] houses are supplied in the first case, and only one will be benefitted in the second and it will require [illegible] feet of 4 inch pipe. As to the bills of Messrs De Coursey, A. A. [illegible] and the Colorado Springs Co. we have not money sufficient to warrant the payment of the same at this time. Your committee has not had time to look into the rest of the business in the hands, but will endeavor to do so by the next meeting of the council. There are two other items we wish to call the attention of the council to, viz. A pipe to connect the two reservoirs, of say 10 inch capacity. Also the advisability of putting a telephone in the residence of the water superintendent, for the purpose of having quick communication with him in case of a break in the pipes which will save great delay and in some cases great expense.

W. R. ROSS,
F. W. DAVIS,
J. A. LAYTON.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

The City Will Help in the Expense of Entertaining the President.

Alderman Roby was the only member not present at last night's special council meeting to decide on the appropriation for entertaining the presidential party.

The call of the meeting was read and Mayor Sprague stated that the committee appointed in regard to entertaining the presidential party had asked $200 from the council and would raise any other money needed themselves.

Alderman Finnegan made a motion that there be no limit made to the appropriation of the council which was put to a vote and lost by a vote of seven nays and two ayes.

A motion of Alderman Dunbar that the council appropriate a sum not exceeding $500 was voted upon and carried by a vote seven ayes and two nays.

The council adjourned after discussing a number of topics.

President's Reception—General Invitation.

By request of the executive and other committees appointed with reference to the reception of President Harrison and party on May 11, 1891 I hereby extend to the various commanderies of the Grand Army of the Republic, military companies, fire departments, secret societies, and all other organizations in Colorado Springs and other parts of El Paso county, that are accustomed to parade, a most cordial invitation to participate in this interesting occasion. All such organizations desiring to thus unite with us are requested to report as soon as possible to L. C. Dana, who has been chosen marshal of the day, in order that they may be assigned appropriate positions in the column.

All our citizens are earnestly invited to prepare patriotic and floral decorations for their business houses as well as their homes, so that our chief executive may have a royal welcome to our city.

Further details will be given in our daily papers. IRA G. SPRAGUE, Mayor.

County W. C. T. U.

The meetings of the El Paso Women's Christian Temperance Union convention were held in the South Methodist church yesterday afternoon and evening. The representatives of a number of outside unions were present, who gave interesting reports of the work of their respective branches. The principal work performed during the afternoon session was the discussion on the subject of distributing magazine, newspaper and tract literature among the poor and degraded classes throughout the county, and also the subject of home reading. In regard to this, papers were presented by Mrs A. F. Newton on "Mothers' Reading" and another by Mrs. Atkins on "Children's Reading."

At the meeting in the evening a good sized audience was present, including a number of men. An interesting paper was read by Miss Dewey on the Froebel system in the kindergarten, and an address was given by Mrs. Hopkins the state president of the union, which, although very informal, was much enjoyed by her hearers.

Lillian Lewis.

The famous Kentucky actress will be seen at the opera house on Thursday, May 7. The play she will present is that intense and realistic production entitled, "Credit Lorraine," which has made a furor in the east. An exchange says:

The audience that assembled at the opera house last night was one of the largest and most brilliant of the dramatic season. Crowding the house to its fullest capacity, it fitly and impressively represented the select portion of the amusement public. So far as the public event of last evening is worthy of record, it may be said that it was signalized by a dramatic performance that challenged the approbation and hearty applause of a large, appreciative and discriminating audience. Although Miss Lillian Lewis has been seen on several occasions by Dallas theatre goers as Lenora in Mr. Lawrence Marston's emotional drama of "Credit Lorraine," her impersonation of the gloomy tragic role never loses any of its freshness and originality, but seems to increase each season in finish and the confluence of artistic pleasure. It is a compliment, even to a great emotional actress, that she should be able to rise up to the tragic power (and the lurid splendor) of the character of Lenora and invest it with a coloring that is not merely theatrical but distinctly and irresistibly human. This Miss Lewis admirably succeeds in doing, and it is a conclusive evidence of her genius that she redeems the character from the category of the artificial and makes it quiver with passion and thrill with real interest.

In her impersonation last evening she held the large audience spellbound by her superb acting of the tragic phases of the role and wrought it up to a most demonstrative pitch of enthusiasm. In the interpretation of tigerish characters, the portrayal of malevolent passions, anger, hatred and scorn, Miss Lewis is unquestionably has no superior on the American stage. The inferior of Clara Morris in the expression of the pathetic emotions, she is incomparably the superior of that actress in the embodiment of tragic passion, and in power of voice, physique and capacity for passionate expression is to the emotional stage of to-day what Edwin Forrest, the great tragedian, was to the tragic stage of the past. Miss Lewis' support this season is much stronger than it has ever been heretofore, embracing such well known actors as Edmond Collier and George Wessells.

A WORLD'S FAIR ROMANCE.

One of the Lady Managers Won by a Stenographer Who Took Her Speech.

Monday, just a week ago, Miss Cora D. Payne the lady manager from Kentucky, disappeared from the World's fair headquarters. She left a note to the other ladies stating that she had been called home on important business and would return in a few days. The ladies paid no particular attention to the matter, as Miss Payne frequently visited her southern home and returned without anything eventful transpiring. When Miss Payne put in an appearance, however, the ladies put aside their apathy, for she was no longer Miss C. Payne, but Mrs. Alfred Jackson. Mrs. Jackson was not dressed in the gala attire of a bride. Her toilet was even quieter than usual. It was so quiet that it excited suspicion.

"Have you lost any relatives?" inquired Mrs. Bullene, of Missouri, solicitously.

Mrs. Jackson did not reply at once. She just blushed and looked down at her desk. Mrs. Bullene repeated her question in a louder tone of voice. Still Mrs. Jackson seemed not to hear it, and acted in a timorously preoccupied manner. "I do believe that Miss Payne went away and got married," said Mrs. Bullene to another lady manager.

Then a vocal sparring match took place between the ladies. Mrs. Jackson denied emphatically that such was the case, but her color was so high that she betrayed herself. Finally, driven to bay, Mrs. Jackson confessed that she was Mrs. Jackson.

Miss Payne came from Kentucky last fall when the woman's commission met, and evincing a lively interest in the woman's branch of exposition work, she was asked to remain in Chicago and identify herself with the Chicago headquarters. Her husband was at the time a stenographer in Director General Davis' office. He is a smooth shaven, round faced young man, with a peculiar manner of speech, but it was the hesitating manner of speech that won the lady manager from the south. Every morning they walked to the office together, and every evening they were seen to depart in company.

They never knew each other before the first session of the woman's commission. Jackson was sent to take a stenographic report of the meeting. Miss Payne had just finished making a speech. The confusion was great at the time and Jackson could not catch all that she said. As she seated herself he went quietly over to her seat and asked her politely to repeat what she said. Their eyes met, and it was then that Miss Payne felt her first sensation of love and Mr. Jackson lost his heart.

Things progressed nicely until the time for the marriage came, and it was then Miss Payne suggested a deception that was executed admirably. Instead of going home she went with her husband that was to be to London, Canada, where his parents resided, and there the marriage ceremony was performed.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson will reside in Chicago, and Mrs. Jackson will continue to represent her state in the exposition.—Chicago Mail.

A Solemn Moment.

After the bridal party partook of a sumptuous banquet a younger brother of the bride got up and said solemnly, raising his glass: "Ladies and gentlemen, I have to propose a toast, which, however, must be drunk standing. Please take your glasses and rise up." The guests, although somewhat bewildered, did so. "Now," said the young scapegrace, "if you will remain standing for a few minutes I'll find out who has been sitting on my new stovepipe hat."—Texas Siftings.

THE GAZETTE.

WEDNESDAY MAY 6, 1891.

Mr. and Mrs. Merriam left over the Rock Island evening for the east.

The Antlers has introduced the novelty of a girl to take charge of the elevator.

Mrs. William Lennox and children left on Monday evening for California, via the Santa Fe.

Mr. R. H. Hutton left on Monday evening for England, where he will make an extended visit.

Mr. K. O. Cooper, managing editor of The Denver Republican, was a visitor in the city yesterday.

Miss March's college biology class will give a biology excursion to Cheyenne canon next Friday.

One tag was fined $20 and costs yesterday morning in the magistrate's court, and given one hour's time in which to leave town.

Mr. Geo. E. Corner, a well known English painter, is a late arrival in the city, and will remain in Colorado's sunshine for a year.

Real estate men report greater inquiry for houses to rent just at present than for a year past, indicating that many people are coming in.

John Madle, a German by birth, declared his intention of becoming a citizen of the United States in the district court yesterday.

The north end grocery wagon was badly wrecked yesterday in a runaway near the college reservation. The wagon was a hard looking wreck.

The contract for the plumbing work on the Broadmoor Casino was let yesterday to Kimball & Grady. Some of the finest of work is to be put in.

An old man named Risner was knocked down by two negroes at Colorado City Monday night and robbed of a small amount of money. The officers are looking for the men.

Marriage licenses were issued yesterday to William S. Jones and Miss Edith McAllister, both of Denver; Frank Bloodgood and Della Blackstone, of Colorado Springs.

Messrs. Minck & Kennedy have opened a fruit stand on the corner of Tejon street and Pike's Peak avenue, where fresh fish and all kinds of temperance drinks are served.

Regular meeting of Myrtle lodge, No. 34, K. of P., this evening. Three candidates for Page rank. First rank officers requested to attend. Visiting knights are cordially invited.

The W. R. C. hold their dime social at G. A. R. hall, Friday evening, May 8th. Music, games, oranges and pop corn for sale by ... Members of corps are requested to furnish oranges.

Hon. R. E. Gaylord and wife of Omaha, Neb., arrived last evening, and will remain in the city a few days. Mr. Gaylord's mother, Mrs. Reuben Gaylord, will return with them to her home in Omaha.

Dr. Matthez, the optician who has been at the Antlers for some time, will close his office in this city next Saturday. Those desiring to avail themselves of the doctor's skill should call at once. He can be found at the hotel.

Attention is called to the notice for the annual meeting of the Humane society this afternoon. The meeting will be held at 4 o'clock in The Antlers' pavilion and should be largely attended. It is the most important meeting of the year.

The De La Vergne Furniture company have opened their spring campaign in earnest and propose to close out their entire stock before the completion of their new building. Their advertisement on this page will prove interesting to many housekeepers.

The blind pupils at the institute are making great efforts to make their entertainment, which comes off on the 15th a financial success. Their ambitions are to provide the institute with suitable instruments for an orchestra.

Mr. Ezekial Tominosian, a dealer in oriental rugs, tapestries and bric-a-brac, has taken the vacant store room on Pike's Peak avenue, next to Johnson's store, for the sale of his goods. He has a very handsome display that the ladies are visiting in large numbers.

The county commissioners are figuring on putting in two bridges near Monument, over the Dirty Woman creek, one of them an iron bridge. The commissioners went out to Peyton yesterday with Rock Island railroad representatives to consult in the matter of putting in an under-crossing at that point.

Mr. J. W. McLean has leased the Ute hotel at Ute Park for the coming season. Mr. McLean is well and favorably known as a first-class caterer, and, under his management, we predict a successful season. The Ute is new and clean and its table will be equal to any in the country. The hotel opens about June 1.

A mock trial will be given in Palmer hall Colorado college next Friday night, by the combined talent of the two literary societies of the college. It will be a parody on the famous Millington trial, and will no doubt draw a crowded chapel, as the proceedings will be lively and interesting and the admission gratis.

Mr. H. C. Smith, for the past year or more city passenger agent of the A. T. & S. F. railroad, has resigned his position and left last night for Kansas City. Mr. P. C. Dockstader, for some time in the freight department of the road, takes Mr. Smith's place and Mr. Sherman Hoyt succeeds to Mr. Dockstader's desk.

The chairman of the executive committee on presidential reception hopes that his call for a meeting of the members of the various committees at 4 o'clock this afternoon, may meet with a generous response. Without earnestness in the work, our reception of the president and party will not be what our citizens have a right to expect.

The most wonderful advance in values in that marvelous city, Denver, has been on Capitol hill, east of the city. An observer cannot fail to see that Knob hill adjoining Colorado Springs on the east, is an exact counterpart of Capitol hill. That the owners of Knob hill are fully aware of this is evidenced by the system of improvements. It is well worth while to take a rapid transit car to Knob hill and see the new dwellings, water pipes being laid and work progressing on the Childs-Drexel home.

Dr. S. W. Morrison has brought suit against the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad company, and Justice Walker awarded him the sum of $65 damages. The case was to the effect that the railroad company had detained the plaintiff's goods on the grounds that the full charges for transportation had not been paid. It was brought to light, however, that the doctor had prepaid his goods, and the company had not been properly notified of the fact by the eastern shippers. The case will be appealed to the county court for a further decision.

THE GAZETTE, in its account of the meeting held at the close of the school election Monday afternoon, made an error. It stated in substance that the meeting voted to ask for postponement in the building of the high school, by endorsing the action of the meeting held in April. No such action was taken at either meeting. The error was a mistake of a reporter, and was entirely unintentional.

At the annual election of the Hook and Ladder company held last night the following officers were elected: James Doyle, foreman; W. C. Jones, first assistant; John Laber, second assistant; M. E. Irving, secretary; Philip Struble, treasurer; Wm. Scott, R. Dow, James Burnes, executive committee; sick committee, Dr. Stephenson.

SPECIAL NOTICE:

The members of all the committees on the Presidential reception are earnestly requested to meet with the Executive committee at four o'clock this afternoon, in the Antlers Annex.

WM. S. JACKSON,
Chairman Executive Committee.
